

Queen's University
Belfast

MASTERS BY RESEARCH IN IRISH LOCAL HISTORY

Interested in local history? This Masters (MRes) course provides the research training and supervision required for you to develop your project into a publishable academic thesis.

This unique course draws on the expertise within the School of History and Anthropology. Elements of this course are offered in collaboration with local experts from the Mellon Centre for Migration Studies, Omagh, the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland, Belfast, and other institutions in the Museums, Archives and Libraries sector in Northern Ireland.

Modules include: Theory and Method of Local History; Themes in Modern Irish Local History; Migration, Family and Community; Public History Internship; Historical Documents and Sources; Dissertation.

Part-time (31 months) or full-time (12 months) study.

For informal enquiries, please contact Dr Olwen Purdue:
o.purdue@qub.ac.uk

go.qub.ac.uk/MResIrishLocalHistory